This is a list of all known, published and unpublished records of casual and accidental species that have been reported in the Juan de Fuca Checklist Area. The checklist boundary starts from Becher Bay in East Sooke Park and runs up the west coast including Jordan River, Port Renfrew, and the West Coast Trail to the village of Bamfield, extending as far west as the Canada – US Border. The boundary also extends north of Bamfield to include the Broken Islands, and offshore to include Barkley Canyon. The boundary follows Loudon Channel east around the Broken Island Group, then up Imperial Eagle Channel and Alberni Inlet to Coleman Creek. From Coleman Creek the boundary heads in a southeast direction following the mountain Tops [Townicut Mt., Mt. Modeste, Mt. Todd, Survey Mt. to Empress Mt.] that make up the Juan de Fuca Drainage Basin. From here the boundary extends due south, including Sooke, using the Sooke / Metchosin boundary as the checklist boundary, following this line back down to Becher Bay and extending as far out as the Canada – US Border. To date there have been 397 species recorded in the Juan de Fuca Checklist area, including 117 breeding species, 147 species seen less than once a year, 6 introduced species and 2 extirpated species. This a general list and will be added to throughout the future as more information becomes available.

Casual/ Accidental Species List

The following species are considered casual or accidental in the Juan de Fuca Checklist Area. These species are very unusual to the region. To be considered a species of accidental occurrence there has only been 1-2 records in total or in a given season. To be considered a species of casual occurrence there have been between 3-10 records historically, often occurring at a particular time of year, but they occur less than once or in some cases a few times in a ten year period. In the case of an accidental species there is often only a single record or at most a couple of records with the occurrences of a species going several decades or much longer before reoccurring. These species are considered extremely unusual in the Juan de Fuca area and are always in need of documentation. There are a few species that have historically bred, but are now extirpated from the Checklist Area (or in other words extinct in the local region). An asterisks * followed by a [X] symbol after the birds name define which birds fall in this category. In a few cases there were species introduced to the Juan de Fuca area and for a time were successful. These species also have an [I] beside them marking that they were introduced to the region. In some cases there are species that are suspected to be breeding or have bred in the past in the region, but to date there has been no nest found. These species have an asterisk in brackets (*) after the species name. For any casual or accidental species to be put on this list they are considered far out of range, extremely rare in the defined Juan de Fuca region or in a few cases the species were once easily found in our region, but due to ecological changes are now almost impossible to find in the region. These birds should always be documented when encountered, as they are extremely unusual at any time of year in the Juan de Fuca Checklist Area.

Short Note: In early August of 2009 warm waters came up from Hawaii covering the fishing grounds of Swiftsure Banks, La Perouse Banks and beyond (R. Nicks Pers. Comm.). The warm water influx forced offshore small prey fish to come into the Juan de Fuca in massive numbers creating huge “bait balls”. The Juan de Fuca Eddy probably was also a large factor in this effect as it has a tremendous pull on the tides (Burger 2003). As a result from August through mid-October the offshore fishery was fishing in the Juan de Fuca Strait. The fishery was dumping massive amounts of bi-catch which was measured by Capt. Russ Nicks to be over 2 feet deep (R. Nicks Pers. Comm.). As a result of there being these factory boats in close to shore many tubenoses would follow the boats eating the bi-catch which created a unique and rare opportunity to study from land birds that one would normally have to go far offshore to view. Many hundreds of tubenoses came into the western region of the Juan de Fuca Strait. All of these species were visible using telescopes from shore. Many of the dozen factory ships, such as the seiner, the Osprey, had as many as 56 Black-footed Albatrosses behind them including a sub-adult Short-tailed Albatross that was seen by a few birders and whale watchers. It would be interesting to see if this phenomenon occurs again in the future as it brought with it many incredible sightings. As a result hundreds of pelagic tubenoses, jaegers, alcids, gulls etc. were seen right off Sooke and all the way up to Port Renfrew. To take advantage of this opportunity many boat trips were organized and allowed many people to enjoy these birds in calm waters from an open zodiac. One August 2009 pelagic trip had 50+ Pomarine Jaegers and well over 100+ Pink-footed Shearwaters in the Juan de Fuca Strait with many documentation photographs taken. With further dedicated sea watching efforts observers will find much of what has been reported here again. It is vital to pay attention to the tides, the storm tracks and ocean temperatures to be successful. It also helps to be diligent and patient as these winged phantoms do not always occur close to shore, even under perfect conditions.

Short-tailed Albatross (Phoebastria albatrus): [Accidental in the Spring and Summer: Sight records well documented with written documentation]
