'Urbanism in the Time of Empire'

Ananya Roy

City and Regional Planning, University of California, Berkeley

Ananya Roy is Assistant Professor in the Department of City and Regional Planning at the University of California at Berkeley, where she chairs the Urban Studies Program. She is also Associate Dean for the Division of International and Area Studies. Roy is an urbanist committed to the interdisciplinary and transnational study of cities. Her books include City Requiem, Calcutta: Gender and the Politics of Poverty (University of Minnesota Press, 2003) and, co-edited with Nezar AlSayyad, Urban Informality: Transnational Perspectives from the Middle East, South Asia, and Latin America (Lexington Books, 2004). Roy's current research examines the apparatus of international development and its geographies of power and resistance. The project is tentatively titled Povertyscape: The New Global Order of Aid, Debt, and Development, and is slated to be published by Routledge.
